VEDICCHART / READING PREVIEW

Marriage & Relationship

An illustrative PDF excerpt

REFERENCE BIRTH CHART

June 15, 1995 - 2:36 PM local time

New York, United States - America/New_York

Lahiri sidereal - Whole-sign houses

Illustrative explanations based on published reference-chart facts.

Not an AI-generated ten-chapter report or a personal consultation.

SAMPLE ONLY - NOT FOR SALE

How to read this excerpt

What is real chart data, and what is illustrative commentary

The birth-chart facts

The reference chart has Virgo rising. Its seventh house is Pisces, with Saturn in Pisces. The seventh-house ruler Jupiter is in Scorpio in house 3. Venus and Mercury are in Taurus in house 9. The Moon is in Capricorn in house 5, Uttara Ashadha pada 4.

What this sample demonstrates

- How a seventh-house placement and its ruler can be discussed together, rather than as a promise of marriage.
- How D1 and Navamsa D9 can be distinguished instead of treating one D9 indicator as a complete verdict.
- How a dated Vimshottari period is described without predicting a wedding or future partner.

Important limitations

The astronomical and traditional chart facts here match VedicChart's published reference example. The prose in this PDF was specifically prepared as an illustrative preview; it is not the output of the paid AI report pipeline and has not passed that pipeline's full chapter-level validation.

Actual purchased reports contain ten personalized chapters, written from the customer's calculated chart facts and validated before private PDF delivery.

Chapter 02 - D1 Marriage Indicators

An excerpt illustrating the structure of a personalized reading

The seventh house and its ruler

In the reference chart, Virgo is the Ascendant and Pisces is the seventh whole-sign house. Traditional Jyotish pays particular attention to the seventh house when discussing commitment and partnership. Saturn occupies Pisces, while Jupiter - the ruler of Pisces - occupies Scorpio in the third house.

A cautious interpretation considers both the occupant of the seventh house and its ruler. Saturn is traditionally associated with duties, boundaries and sustained effort; Jupiter is often linked with meaning, guidance and ethical priorities. Together these symbols invite questions about reliability, communication and mutual expectations, but they do not describe a predetermined spouse.

Venus and the wider chart

Venus is in Taurus in the ninth house, together with Mercury. In classical Jyotish, Venus is a general relationship significator. Here a reader might explore how values, learning and communication enter a traditional interpretation. Those links are symbolic associations, not facts about the person’s actual marriage.

A fuller paid chapter would compare these placements with the exact D9 facts, Darakaraka and other indicators. It would not infer an exact wedding date or a guaranteed relationship outcome.

A question for reflection

What helps you discuss shared expectations with clarity and respect when a relationship involves different values, responsibilities or life plans?

Chapter 03 - Navamsa D9 Context

Why one D9 placement should never stand alone

A second perspective

The published reference chart has Cancer as its Navamsa D9 Ascendant. Navamsa is a divisional chart used in traditional Vedic astrology to add context to D1 interpretations, including relationship themes. Its role is complementary: the birth chart and divisional chart are considered together.

The D9 Ascendant does not, by itself, describe a future spouse or the success of a marriage. A complete analysis also needs the D9 seventh house, its ruler and relevant planetary positions, compared carefully with the D1 placements.

What a full report examines

- The D1 seventh house, Saturn in Pisces and Jupiter as seventh-house ruler.
- The D9 seventh-house indicators and planets, calculated from the customer’s exact birth information.
- The ways repeated or contrasting traditional themes are explained, without converting them into probabilities.

Why birth time matters

Navamsa placements can change with small differences in birth time. Use the best recorded birth time you have. When that time is uncertain, some interpretations must be treated with additional caution.

This preview intentionally does not invent the other D9 planet positions or a detailed compatibility verdict.

Chapter 07 - Planetary Periods

An example with fixed dates - not a present-day forecast

The Dasha snapshot

As of September 9, 2026, the published reference chart was in Rahu Mahadasha, Venus Antardasha and Rahu Pratyantar. The Rahu Mahadasha ran from September 6, 2013 to September 6, 2031; the Venus Antardasha ran from March 25, 2025 to March 25, 2028.

The Rahu Pratyantar in that snapshot ran from April 22, 2026 to October 3, 2026. These dates follow the reference chart’s Moon placement in Uttara Ashadha and its starting Sun Mahadasha balance. They are not dates of predicted personal events.

Interpreting the ruler

Rahu is in Libra in the second house in this reference chart; Venus is in Taurus in the ninth. An illustrative Jyotish reading may discuss the traditional meanings of family or resources alongside values, learning and personal priorities.

These symbolic themes must not be presented as evidence that the person will marry, separate or meet a partner during a period. Real relationship decisions remain in the person’s control.

A question for reflection

Which values, commitments and conversations would you want to revisit when thinking about a long-term partnership?

Inside the ten-chapter report

The purchased PDF is personalized - this preview is not

01 Your Personal Relationship Overview
02 Marriage Indicators in Your D1 Chart
03 Navamsa D9 Marriage Analysis
04 Darakaraka & Long-Term Partner Themes
05 Your Relationship Strengths
06 Relationship Challenges & Growth
07 Marriage-Related Planetary Periods
08 Your Relationship Journey
09 Practical Reflections
10 Your Personal Summary

What happens after ordering

A buyer provides their recorded birth details, selected relationship focus and delivery email. The service calculates the chart and relationship indicators before AI-assisted drafting. The completed report must pass fact and chapter checks before the PDF is prepared and emailed after verified payment.

The actual report is a one-time purchase, not a subscription. Your own birth chart data stays private; this sample uses a fixed reference chart instead.

For support or delivery questions: support@vedicchart.net. To calculate a free chart first, visit vedicchart.net.